THE COLLEGE CURRICULUM

“A CO-CONSTRUCTED PEDAGOGY THAT ENABLES HUMAN GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT, WHICH IS ESSENTIAL TO ALL WORK WITH YOUNG PEOPLE.”

Welcome to the new YMCA George Williams College Curriculum. Since merging with the Centre for Youth Impact in April 2022, the College has been looking at ways in which it can continue its legacy as an educational institution whilst aligning with the Centre’s unique work in the field of impact measurement and support for organisational learning. Our new curriculum is a result of this alignment. The curriculum spans the College’s three new centres of expertise: the Centre for Youth Impact, the Centre for Quality Practice, and the Centre for Youth Voice. All our work at the College is grounded in our belief that high quality youth provision creates positive change with and for young people, and the communities in which they live. We believe high-quality provision should be underpinned by youth voice and improved in the light of evidence gathered appropriately and proportionately. The Curriculum is designed for staff and volunteers working in organisations engaging young people in informal and non-formal youth provision.

Teaching and learning

The YMCA George Williams College model of teaching and learning is built on the principles of relational practice. These are dialogue, reflection, and authenticity. In and of themselves, none of these ideas are original, but as a sum of their parts they provide a co-constructed pedagogy that enables human growth and development, which is essential to all work with young people.

Why relational practice?

In the context of relational practice, dialogue is more than a conversation. It is an exchange: a relationship in which people share ideas and experiences to find meaning and understanding of the self and the world around us. Dialogue is co-constructed, and happens between people, not to them. When dialogue sits alongside reflection and authenticity, we see evidence of a commitment to truth, knowledge, and understanding in the thoughts and ideas of others.

It is through dialogical reflection that we find the opportunity to be attuned and attend to, and learn from, our experiences. Working in this way provides a safe space to think critically about ourselves and the world around us, disrupting taken for granted, normative assumptions and beliefs on a journey of growth and development. Working in this way, we build equity and autonomy.

Relational practice is most impactful when aligned with organisational values and when delivered with integrity by staff modelling authentic professional relationships. It therefore a part of strategic and everyday life.

Benefits of using relational practice

As an applied pedagogy, relational practice affords opportunities to work across a range of relational contexts, including work with the self, others, community, and society more broadly. Similarly, the range of fields that have benefited from relational practice span health, social care, and leadership and management. With the launch of our curriculum, we return the College's roots of placing high quality, dialogical, authentic, and reflective relationships at the heart of what we do. This means that all our courses have relational practice content, and they are facilitated in a relational way.

YMCA George Williams College works to provide transformational support to practitioners, funders, and policymakers across the youth sector to strengthen the quality and impact of provision and outcomes for children and young people across the UK.

Established in 1970, our vision is for a just and equitable society that invests in support for all young people to learn, grow, and explore their relationships with the world around them. This support is characterised by safe spaces, high quality socio-emotional skill development opportunities, and relationships with trusted adults.

For over 50 years, the College has devoted itself to the training and education of youth workers from pre to post graduate levels. Latterly, the College broadened its offer to draw on the principles of relational practice to support and develop all practitioners working with and for children, young people and families.

Our values

We live these values in our organisation, with our partners, and in all our courses.

We are:

Considered: open, thoughtful, curious, rigorous, credible - an independent voice with a wide field of vision.

Challenging: audacious and confident in our actionable insights, developing and innovating, and remaining open to different ideas.

Collaborative: working with others to achieve change, developing collective insights and assets, sharing resources openly and seeking diverse relationships.

Compassionate: human, trusting and empathetic in our approach, starting where others are at and centring the practical, emotional and equitable foundations of our work.

Our vision

Working with our partners, practitioners and young people, we will:

- Transform our collective understanding of how and why youth work and informal learning changes lives;
- Transform how we collectively measure and advocate for the change that youth work and informal learning creates;
- Transform perceptions of the sector's commitment to evaluation, to influence both policy and investment; and
- Transform support for the sector, so that everyone working with and for young people can actively improve the quality of their practice and therefore the outcomes for the young people and communities they engage.

WHY CHOOSE TO LEARN WITH US?

- We have a long history and rich heritage in high quality learning experiences that support the youth sector across the UK.
- We have a unique focus that brings together impact, evidence, quality improvement and youth voice.
- We draw on relational practice as both content and pedagogy.
- We have staff with skills in youth work, research, teaching, training and leadership.
- We can offer some of our courses at no cost, through funding from the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS).
- We have accredited and non-accredited options in our curriculum.
- We offer flexible learning pathways that allow you to dip into a subject or study an entire course.
- We have exceptional feedback from our course evaluations, in particular that participants value the practical focus in our teaching and learning, enabling them to make immediate practice improvements.

Our three centres of expertise have different areas of focus: one supporting the design and delivery of high-quality informal and non-formal youth provision, one focused on evidencing the impact of such provision to enable it to be even more effective, and one advocating for a stronger role for youth voice in evaluation and continuous quality improvement. Our centres are:

THE CENTRE FOR YOUTH IMPACT

Part of YMCA George Williams College

The Centre for Youth Impact at YMCA George Williams College supports organisations to generate and act on evidence of the impact of their provision. Using a robust evidence base, the Centre for Youth Impact designs, tests, and champions shared approaches to quality and impact that facilitate collective insight and learning, consolidating and sharing open access resources, research, and training for all those working in informal and non-formal youth provision.

THE CENTRE FOR QUALITY PRACTICE

Part of YMCA George Williams College

The Centre for Quality Practice at YMCA George Williams College works to develop thoughtful and skilled practitioners who can create high quality informal and non-formal learning environments. Through high quality training and learning, the Centre for Quality Practice provides resources and educational opportunities that have a focus on holistic development and relational support for young people.

THE CENTRE FOR YOUTH VOICE

Part of YMCA George Williams College

The Centre for Youth Voice at YMCA George Williams College advocates for and supports a stronger role for the voices of young people in evaluation and continuous quality improvement. Underpinned by the belief in participation of young people in the decisions that affect them, the Centre for Youth Voice develops and shares relational, structural, and practical approaches to embedding the voices of young people, and directly supporting them to develop their research and evaluation skills.

Relational practice underpins our work in all three centres of expertise, where we strive to be authentic, engage in dialogue, and reflect. Our relational practice curriculum spans the three centres.

Helping young people understand socio-emotional skills

Overview

Equipping young people with awareness of socio-emotional skills and how to manage them is a powerful way to increase their life-long skills rather than 'teaching' them actions and consequences. Through this course, young people are provided with a basic understanding of socio-emotional skills, how to manage them and how they can affect the development of their thoughts, beliefs and behaviours long-term.

Outcomes

By the end of this module, young people will have:

- Gained an understanding of how their socio-emotional skills impact on their relationships with family, communities and society;
- Discussed their ideas and explained them to others; and
- Worked with the thoughts, feelings and experiences of their peers and their challenges.

This course is delivered through face-to-face activities, discussion and providing a safe space to question. It can be tailored to different group sizes and age ranges.

Hours of learning

This is a two-hour face to face workshop with young people. We have materials that you can deliver yourself, or we can deliver the workshop for you at a cost.

Accreditation options

This course is not accredited.

Cost

If you want to access the materials yourself, they are free of charge.

If you would like us to deliver the workshop for you, we can run it for groups of 10-20 young people for £800 (inc. VAT) plus travel expenses.

Dates

Please enquire as to our availability.

Helping practitioners understand socio-emotional skills

Overview

This course is designed for practitioners who are at the start of their journey of understanding socio-emotional skills and their development. The course will introduce you to our Framework of Outcomes for Young People, our six domains of socio-emotional outcomes, their importance, and how they are linked to human growth and development. The course will also provide opportunities for reflection on your own socio-emotional skill development as a practitioner.

Outcomes

At the end of this course, you will be able to:

- Name and describe socio-emotional skills;
- Describe how an environment can affect socio-emotional skill development;
- Relate socio-emotional theory to practice considering complementary perspectives;
- Name and understand your own socio-emotional skills;
- Situate socio-emotional skill development in the wider context of human growth and development theory; and
- Describe and apply knowledge that supports socio-emotional skill development in practice.

Qualification and Credit Framework Level

This course is at QCF Level 3.

Delivering, measuring and observing socio-emotional skill development practice

Overview

This course is grounded in the College's Quality Practice Tool and is designed to introduce you to socio-emotional skills, and the practices that support their development with young people. The course is delivered on one day, and is split into three modules. You can take part in one or more of the modules. The first module identifies four areas of high-quality socio-emotional skill development practice and their indicators. The second module introduces the Quality Practice Tool and how to use it to measure quality practice, and the third module focuses on how to observe practice to support continuous quality improvement.

Outcomes

At the end of this course, you will be able to:

- Identify the components of high-quality socio-emotional skill development and apply them in practice
- Apply theory to the four areas of high quality socio-emotional skill development practice.
- Explain and use the YMCA George Williams College socio-emotional skill measures.
- Be able to observe practice to support continuous quality improvement
- Skillfully feedback to colleagues.

THE CENTRE FOR YOUTH IMPACT COURSES

THE CENTRE
FOR YOUTH
IMPACT

Part of YMCA George Williams College

Impact and Improvement Programme

Overview

Our Impact and Improvement programme is specifically designed for practitioners working in informal and non-formal youth provision within the UK. Participating in these courses will increase your ability to plan and evaluate the impact of your work, informing your continuous quality improvement. This course is intended for practitioners who are (relatively) new to evaluation and evidence.

Outcomes

The training sessions will build your knowledge and skills to:

- Design youth provision;
- Undertake quality monitoring;
- Design appropriate evaluations;
- Collect relevant and quality data; and
- Identify and embed organisational learning.

Qualifications and Credit Framework Level

This course is at QCF Level 3.

Hours of learning

There are 20 hours of learning across the 10 courses. The courses sit independently but a suggested route of learning is detailed below.

Accreditation options

Each course is accredited with NCFE.

National Occupational Standards

This course will help you to evidence the following national occupational standards for youth work:

YW24 Monitor and evaluate the impact of youth work strategy and delivery.

Cost

The total course cost delivery of £2160 per person is funded by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

The accreditation of each course is available for an additional charge of £110 per person per course.

Impact and Improvement Courses

Course details

We recommend you follow the structure and sequence of the courses described below in order to gain a full understanding of impact and improvement. Each course is also available as a stand alone to allow you to fill any gaps you might have in your skills and knowledge. Context mapping and theory of change are foundation courses that underpin all the others so please ensure you are familiar with these ideas.

Course 1 - Context Mapping

Identify the needs and what assets that your work supports, enables you to meet the community needs. Community can mean geographic, place, shared identity or interests.

We will cover the meaning and choices of context mapping, along with how a context map can inform a theory of change.

Course 2 - An Introduction to Theory of Change

This course will enable you to familiarise the purpose and use of a theory of change and how they are constructed. We will cover how you can use theory of change as a tool for development of evaluation.

Theory of Change can help you be really clear about what you deliver with and for young people their community.

Course 3 - Writing Your Theory of Change

This half-day practical workshop, we will walk through the different stages of developing a theory of change. We will refresh your understanding of theory of change and draft a theory of change for a project or your organisation.

If you are not familiar to theory of change model, you may want to consider the introduction to theory of change workshop.

(CPD Accreditation for this workshop is available at an additional cost of £15 per person).

Course 4 - An Introduction to Monitoring and Evaluation in the Youth Sector

A fundamental aspect of providing opportunities for young people through delivering programmes or activities, is measuring their impact. This course will equip you with the basic awareness of planning to undertake monitoring and evaluation.

Through evaluation you can identify any potential changes you may need to consider within your programmes and projects, along with enabling the young people you work with and for, to provide the essential feedback as part of the evaluation process.

(CPD accreditation for this workshop is available at an additional cost of £15 per person).

Impact and Improvement Courses

Course details continued

Course 5 - Formative Evaluation

This is the learning part of monitoring, evaluation and learning. Formative evaluation enables you learn from the important feedback and using that knowledge to make any necessary changes to programmes or projects within your organisation or event reflecting on how your organisations learns from formative evaluation.

Course 6 - Understanding Different Types of Data

This course will explore the different types of data used, especially in the evaluation context and measuring impact. The course also explores the limitations and strengths within different types of data. The course will also cover how to share your story on the impact you have made.

Course 7 - Youth Voice in Impact Evaluations and Youth Participatory Research

Youth Voice and Youth Participatory Research, identifying how youth voice should be embedded into practice, and not be tokenistic. Youth voice being part of co-design at the start, middle, end and throughout projects, programmes and activities, young people support the opportunities to enhance and develop evaluation through co-design.

This course will also cover youth participatory research and equitable story- telling, ensuring the young person's voice is heard through case study or qualitative approaches.

Course 8 - Creative Data Collection and Analysis Workshop

The course will identify different types of creative collection methods, exploring the limitations and benefits, and how you can share your impact through telling your story.

Course 9 - Shared and Collective Measurement

This course will cover the importance of shared measurement and how as independent organisations work together to develop evidence to demonstrate impact.

The course will cover the types of data, how we can collect data collaboratively and telling your story of your impactful work, through powerful messaging. The course will also cover the complexities that arise from shared measurement, but also the benefits of collaborative working.

During the training you will be able to discuss programmes and projects, and identify methods for shared measurement, and through participative group work learn practices that can be utilised back in your own work settings.

Young Evaluator and Researcher's Course (For Young People)

Overview

Research and evaluation are particularly powerful when planned, undertaken and written up by young people. This course is designed to equip young people with the skills to be able to undertake the whole research process with the support of staff. The course is workshop-based and the young people will complete a practical research or evaluation project by the end.

This course is not run as an open programme but can be commissioned to fit into or start a project you have planned in your youth provision.

You may also want to buy just one or two modules if the young people you are supporting only have a few gaps in their knowledge.

Outcomes

The accredited learning course covers the following learning outcomes, to understand:

- What research and evaluation are and the different purposes that exist for research;
- Be able to select appropriate research methods to use;
- What the purpose and aims of research or evaluation are;
- The purpose of research questions and how to develop them;
- The different methods of research and evaluation and what they are appropriate for;
- How to identify a research or evaluation population, sample and recruit them;
- Key ethical principles and how to manage them in practice;
- Which data collection tools are appropriate for different research questions;
- How to analyse different types of data;
- How to 'write up' your analysis into an output; and
- How to influence others with your research.
